Public Speaking Information

Although many people cite a fear of public speaking as an activity that produces intense anxiety, that's never been the case for Janice Person, CEO and founder of Grounded Communications, LLC. She's been speaking to groups since she found her footing through student government campaigns in junior high school. In recent years, speaking has taken her to some of the world's most famous stages including South by Southwest (SXSW) in Austin and New York's 92nd Street Y as well as smaller meetings without a stage.

Whether on a stage in front of hundreds in a major metropolitan area or a small gathering in a town few people have heard of, every opportunity to speak is something Janice approaches with a combination of enthusiasm and focus. It is a responsibility and an opportunity to learn more about the audience as she shares ideas.

Through her diverse range of keynotes, panels, and training events over the past decade, Janice has prompted thought and action among men, women, and youth.

Janice uses vivid storytelling techniques to help groups discover a sense of wonder, embrace new ideas, conquer fear, and more. Whether you are looking for a starting point for a conference or a single voice at a dinner event, you need someone who can understand your audience & move them. Janice applies her years of experience with a range of topics and audiences to prepare with organizers to ensure that she meets the audience where they are and move them in ways that help organizers achieve the specified goals.
